BEFORE LIFE

Before life, there were only two states of being in existence. The lightest and brightest state of being with its consciousness, and the hardest and darkest state of being with no consciousness.

The lightest and brightest state of being with its consciousness was what we term God, while the hardest and darkest state of being with no consciousness was death. It was as a result of the will of the only state of being with its consciousness (God), to determine the extent of the difference between its being and death that life became necessary.

Life is the term given to the product of God and death through which the extent of their difference can be determined. In the achievement of life, God was the male sexual being while death was the female sexual being which was the beginning and origin of sexuality.

The male sexual being (God): God was the being with its consciousness, to which its course from death was to be determined through life. The extent of this course is the extent of the difference between Death and God and its determination is the purpose of life.

The female sexual being (Death): Death was the being with no consciousness, from which the course of God is to be determined which also is the extent of the difference between Death and God and the purpose of life as well.

All consciousness in life belongs to God, while the physical structure (body) of every living being is traced down to death and thus belongs to death.

God was the first male, the father of life and all living beings while Death was the first female, the mother of life and all living beings.

Life began when the consciousness of God was inserted into the unconscious death. This process was the first and origin of sexual intercourse. After this process, death became pregnant which was also the first and origin of pregnancy. Pregnancy was the period in which the inserted consciousness integrated into the being of death, which involves the effecting of the being of death with the effects of the consciousness and the being of death also effecting the inserted consciousness with its effect, even to the extent their effects on each other could get.

After this integration was done, the product of God and death through which the extent of their difference can be determined termed LIFE was given birth to. The first state of life was in the extent of the effect of the both state of being on each other during the integration period of the consciousness of God into the unconscious being of death.

In the early stages of life, the consciousness of God was complicated in the being of death. This complication gets lighter and brighter as the advancement towards the fulfillment of the purpose of life progresses. Life in its point of birth has 50% being of God and 50% being of death together, in this early stage of life, the effect of God was blurred by the effects of death to the extent of just brightening and lightning the being of death by 50%.

Though this first stage of life was not as dark and hard as death, it was also not as bright and light as God even with its consciousness blurred by the said effect of death. In this state, God was not achieved so the difference between death and God was not yet determined which made the journey of life to continue. The journey of life continued with the insertion of the consciousness of God into the achieved difference to further the journey towards the fulfillment of the ultimate purpose of life. This process made life light enough and thus began expressing the being and consciousness of God in more lighter and brighter forms. These lighter and brighter forms culminated in the being termed the demonkind.

THE DEMONKIND: The culmination of this demonkind is to express the life sperm of the demonkind and how the angels and devils evolved out as they have close dealings with the living beings on earth today. This demonkind has 25% trace of death, with 75% consciousness of God in their integration at the inception of their awakening.

The remaining 25% being of God was the consciousness of God of its being. The demonkind being an achieved extent in the journey of life could not integrate this remaining consciousness of God, as they can only integrate as much as their inherent trace of death could allow.

At the inception of the life of this culminated demonkind, they were void of the knowledge of their being even of the beings that culminated in their being. This knowledge is the consciousness of God of its being, the same is the 25% being of God that is remaining before the absolute being of God is reached again as 75% being of God has already been expressed in living beings. Being in this state, the inherent 25% trace of death in them could not allow them to integrate the remaining 25% being of God so for furtherance towards the fulfillment of the ultimate purpose of life, this demonkind will have to purge the inherent trace of death in their being.

Recall that the formation of these living beings has always been determined by the extent of the effect of God and death on each other. The lighter and brighter life gets, the lighter and brighter the expression of the consciousness of God the living beings express in their formation. The culminated demonkind being lighter and brighter did not complicate the consciousness of God as the preceding states did.

Having culminated in male and female, the demonkind began their journey of purging the resisting 25% trace of death in their being, that the integration of the remaining consciousness of God could be achieved.

The female was the being that has the culminated state of being with its consciousness while the male was the being that though has the culminated state, could also integrate more consciousness of God as much as his inherent trace of death could allow him integrate. The demonkind was the first kind of living being that began integrating the consciousness of God of its being, but could not integrate all, as a result of the resistance from their inherent trace of death. At some extent during the integration of this remaining consciousness of God, the demonkind began reproducing. When they reproduce, some offspring which has weightier trace of death gets comfortable with some state of living and from the same state began exploring towards other goals. The lighter ones at the same time, began developing the zeal (the gap in the separation of their integration) of integrating more consciousness of God.

These off springs of the demonkind who went on exploring towards other goals culminated in a condescended state where the effect of death in life termed evil overwhelmed them and they were thus termed devils, while the off springs that continued integrating the consciousness of God as much as their inherent trace of death allowed them, having integrated the much their inherent trace of death allowed, culminated in a lighter and brighter state termed angelic state and ascended to a lighter and brighter state nearer to the absolute state of God termed heaven. With these changes taking place in the demons, their atmosphere of existence :( an extent in the effect of God on death) became unbearable for their coexistence and was thus referred to as hell.

After the separation, the devils dwelt in hell while the angels in their lighter and brighter state, ascended to an extent of being towards the absolute state of God termed heaven. This extent was the extent their lightness and brightness could get in ascent to the absolute state of God.

THE DEVILS: before this state of devil was reached the off springs of the demonkind who went on exploring towards other goals, began forsaking the consciousness of God in their culmination as they explore, and thus began condescending. This continued until their condescension culminated in the state of devil. These demons forsook 12.5 consciousness of God during this condescension period and were hardened the more by 12.5 being of death which resulted in the creation of the 12.5 intake capacity that made the culmination of the angels possible. In other words, the culminated devils have 62.5% consciousness of God and 37.5% being of death in their integration.

THE ANGELS: With these differences taking place, the off springs of the demonkind with the zeal of integrating more consciousness of God, continued in their quest which culminated in this angelic state of being. The angels have 87.5% consciousness of God and 12.5% trace of death in their integration.

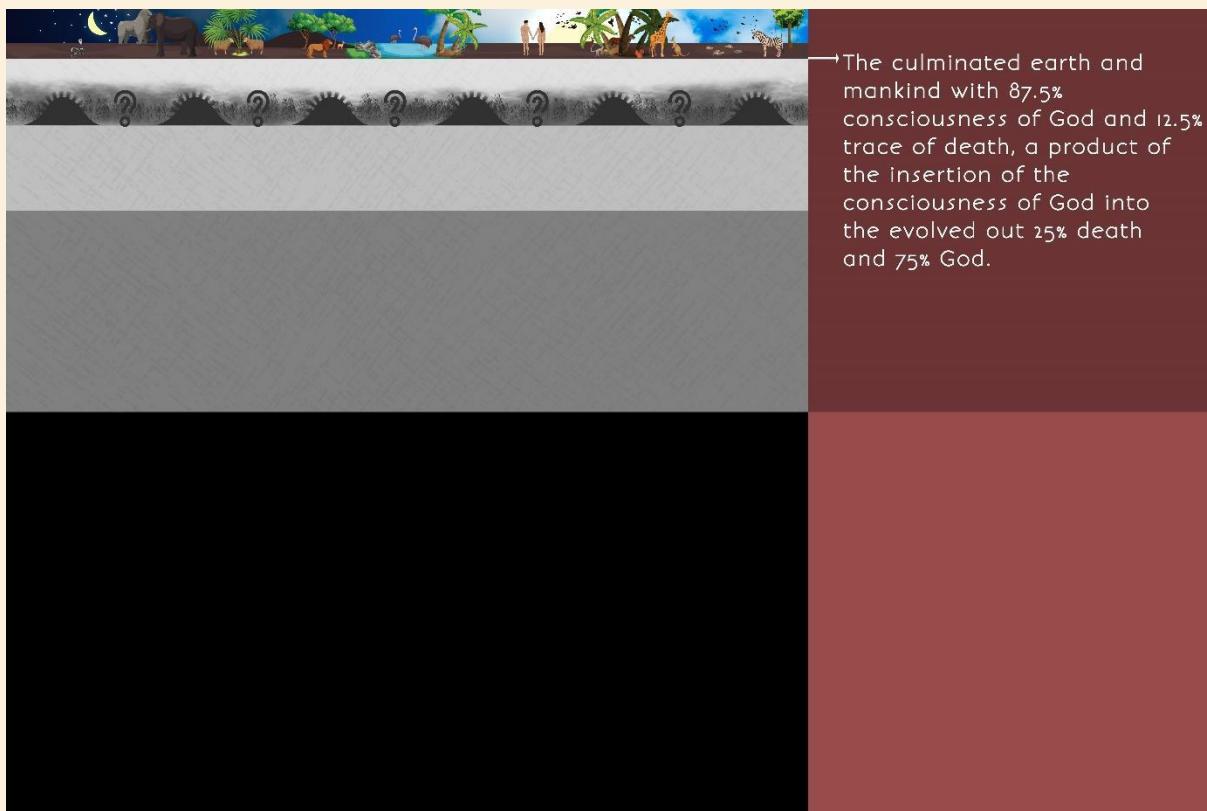

This state of devil and angel was the extent the effect of God on the achieved difference could get and since the absolute state of God was not again reached, the journey of life continued.

The consciousness of God was then inserted into this evolved out state, for life to continue. When the consciousness of God was inserted into this evolved out state, the consciousness integrated into its being and evolved out lighter beings with brighter expression of the consciousness of God. This evolution culminated in the mankind.

MANKIND: this is the term given to the culminated kind of being from the effect of God on the achieved difference which culminated in the devils and angels. As God was not reached, even after the achievement towards the fulfillment of the ultimate purpose of life made by the off springs of the demonkind, the journey of the continued. The consciousness of God was then inserted into the 25% trace of death and 75% consciousness of God state of being which culminated in the devils and angels for life to continue.

The product of this integration culminated in mankind with 87.5% consciousness of God and 12.5% trace of death. In the gap from the inception of the demonkind to mankind lies the same 12.5% consciousness of God integrated by the angels. In other words, the consciousness the angels have, is manifest in the beings that culminated in the mankind. The difference between the mankind and the angels is the ability of mankind to integrate the remaining 12.5% consciousness of God which is the difference between the state of angels and the absolute state of God.

Mankind at the inception of their awakening has 87.5% consciousness of God and 12.5% trace of death in their integration. The mankind, just like the demonkind culminated in male and female. The female bears the achieved state of the 87.5% consciousness of God and 12.5% trace of death in her integration, while the male though has the same, could also integrate more consciousness of God into his being which through the same act of sexual intercourse inserts the same integrated consciousness into the female who undergoes the integration period termed pregnancy after which she produces the product of the effect of the inserted consciousness on her being and her being on the consciousness.

It is through this process that the purging of the 12.5% trace of death inherent in the integration of the mankind and thereby integrating the remaining 12.5% consciousness of God for the 100% state of God to be reached and the purpose of life fulfilled can be achieved.

God having willed to through life, determine the extent of the difference between its being and death, the fulfillment of this purpose of life is inevitable.
